

Why I want to go to Space Camp

I want to go to space camp because I want to be the new generation of lunar explorer. I would like to have experience how it feels to walk on moon in the 1/6th gravity chair, have modern spaceflight knowledge and prepare to be future space pioneers.

The astronaut-style training and stimulation creates a chance for me to gain knowledge. I would like to take over the cockpit for pilot or commanders on my time there, building teamwork with my friends - to be, while taking the Low Rope Course at Area 51. Then I want to take a mission specialist and walk in the space to repair the Hubble Space Telescope on an extra vehicular activity. It is not forgetting that I want to experience the feeling of living and working in space operating the Station's life support, also crew and equipment support system.

Above all else, it would be nice to challenge my self and experience the Multi-axis trainer, where I would tumble and spin. The 1/6 Gravity Chair and Freedom Chair is also breath taking, I would imagine myself floating around and feeling pleasant, because it's not everyday I get to float around without much of a gravity.

In addition to my adventurous of wanting to explore, I also have a curiosity that always wants to know more. I would like to discover new things for myself. Since in the space camp there will be a scientific experiments focusing on polymers and soil samples from earth, mars, and the moon, I would really love to get my hand on them and experiment into finding the result of the desired, and then adding it to my knowledge. All experiences and knowledge I gain from the space camp would be a great foundation of my future.
