

Why I Want to Go to Space Camp

by Hannah Wheaton

February 6, 2017

I want to go to space camp for three reasons: I have wanted to since I was five, I love learning almost anything, and I am interested in a career with NASA.

The first reason I want to go to space camp is that I have wanted to since I was five. I have been interested in space and other fields of science for years. Additionally, one of my favorite vacations ever involved going to the Kennedy Space Center and Orlando Science Center. I was so excited to hear there was a space camp, I couldn't wait until I was old enough!

The second reason I want to go to space camp is that I love learning almost anything! I enjoy problem-solving in addition to math, science, and physics. Some other subjects I would like to learn include physiology, psychology, sociology, algebra – again, almost anything! I also have a passion for languages and would like to learn as many as possible in addition to having a basic understanding of Spanish, French, German, and Latin. In addition, I am a ballet dancer, which helps with balance, coordination, and overall fitness. I would enjoy applying these skills to making a mission to Mars reality.

The third reason I want to go to space camp is that I am interested in a career with NASA. I am interested in being an astronaut, robotics designer, or aerospace engineer – jobs that involve a lot of my favorite skills. As a young child, some of my aspirations included scientist, pilot, and, of course, astronaut. I also enjoy educating others on these topics.

In conclusion, I want to go to space camp because I have wanted to since I was five, I love learning almost anything, and I am interested in a career with NASA.